EYE WITNESS TO DISCLOSE FACTS IN LAKE TRAGEDY

Farmer Recognizes Men in the Masked Band Who Flogged Pair.

WITNESS IS HIDDEN

Prosecutors Say Farmer is Held in Readiness for Inquiry.

(By the Associated Press)
BASTROP, Dec. 26.—That the state will be able to establish through an eye witness the identity of several members of a masked mob which last August kidnapped five Mer Rouge residents, including Watt Daniels, and Thomas Richards, whose decapitated bodies were taken from a nearby lake last week, was the statement today of investigators who have been working on the case for several months.

The identities will be made, the secret service men said, through testimony at the open hearing ordered by Governor John Parker to begin here January 5, of a farmer whose home is near Oakridge, in the southeastern part of Morhouse parish, who they declare, told them he witnessed the seizure and spirit away of the quintet and recognized some of the abductors when they lifted their hoods to drink water.

The farmer, who investigators say they have in hand, was held up by the band on the Mer Rouge highway the night of the kidnapping and commanded to go to a nearby ranch and get a bucket of water for the thirsty band. He obeyed and when he returned he was directed to take a seat on a log. He is said to have declared that he recognized several members of the band when they raised their masks to drink from the bucket.

The investigators declined to disclose the present whereabouts of the farmer but it was intimated that he was somewhere in Mississippi under protection of a government officer. It was stated that he would be produced when wanted.

Plans for the open hearing here will be formulated at a conference in New Orleans next Thursday of those conducting the inquiry.

Those acquainted with the character of the witnesses the state will call are authority for the statement that they will not fear to testify to all they know. It was this spirit of defiance to the mob of masked men that is believed to have led to the death of Daniels and Richards.

Republican Leaders Confer on Policies for Borah Amendment

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—Senate republican leaders conferred today in an effort to agree on what change they will seek in the proposal of Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, for an international economic and disarmament conference. The proposal is embodied in an amendment to the naval appropriation bill, which is to come before the senate tomorrow when it reassembles after the Christmas holidays.

A large part of the republican membership and number of democrats are understood to be against the Borah amendment in its present form. The views of President Harding, Secretary Hughes and other administration officials have been sought by senator who have talked with them will not disclose what opinions were expressed.

Five Masked Men Fail in Attempt Rob Station Safe

WELEETKA, Dec. 26.—Five masked men made an unsuccessful attempt to blow the St. Louis, San Francisco station safe here last night after imprisoning two ticket agents in a box car. The safe withstood the blast from a charge of dynamite and the robbers fled after setting fire to a motor train on the track which operates between Tulsa and Okmulgee. The train was slightly damaged.

Arthur Sulsey, who approached the station while the bandits were at work, was knocked senseless with the butt of a revolver as he crossed the street and was taken to a hospital. His condition is not serious.

JAY.—A. J. Rogers, living near Leach, was accidentally shot while out on his farm bird-hunting. Two or three shot hit Rogers, one of them striking him in the neck, but none of the wounds is considered serious.

American Observers at Lausanne

The influence of the United States is expected to be a determining factor in the final decisions of the delegates meeting at the Lausanne Near East peace parley. Though not officially represented at the deliberations, the American observers, led by Ambassador Child and Minister Grew, carry considerable weight among the delegates and already have caused a split between the Russ and Turkish delegations by their insistence on the freedom of the Dardanelles.

Gotham Settles to Dry Xmas

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—While police records show that yesterday was the "dryest" Christmas in New York's history, six deaths were attributed by police to bootleg liquor. Autopsies will be performed on the bodies of the six—five men and one woman—today.

Threats of prohibition authorities to make the city as dry over the holiday season as the 18th amendment contemplated or the whole year, had its effect so far as public drinking was concerned, police reported.

For the first time in the memory of the oldest attache in the west side court, not a man was brought to the bar on a charge of intoxication. Bellevue hospital reported that only twelve persons suffering from alcoholism were treated there yesterday. That is the lowest number for Christmas in the history of the institution.

Minor raids were made by prohibition agents, liquor being confiscated in several places visited.

E. S. HARAWAY'S HOME DESTROYED BY FIRE

The home of E. S. Haraway at the extreme end of South Broadway, was destroyed by fire Monday evening. It caught in some unknown manner between the ceiling and roof and the entire upper part of the house was in flames before it was discovered. The family barely had time to escape. A piano and grand piano were about all of the contents of the house saved. For a time other houses in the same block were in danger but prompt action prevented a spread of the flames.

Mr. Haraway states that he is unable to give an estimate of his loss yet. The building was constructed of brick and the walls were apparently not greatly damaged. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

The fire company responded promptly to the alarm but the fire had made too much headway for them to save the house. Zip West, one of the firemen, came in contact with a live wire and was killed down but suffered no serious injury.

Reports from the Church of Christ on East Main street are that the Christmas services were very successful. Appropriate programs for the observing of Christ's birthday were carried out at morning and evening services Sunday.

Elder Brandon of Centrahoma preached at the morning service and Elder Oscar L. Hays preached at the evening service. The closing sermon for the year will be delivered next Sunday by Brother Shipman.

Clothing was distributed among the poor during the Christmas season. Women of the church met regularly in days prior to Christmas in an effort to prepare clothing for distribution.

Young people's meeting Sunday was well attended. Those in charge report an increase in interest at this season of the year.

OKLAHOMA BANK ROBBER IN JAIL

Confesses to Authorities in California; Claims Tired Being Fugitive.

(By the Associated Press)

RICHMOND, Cal., Dec. 26.—A man, who said he is William T. Price, surrendered to the police here today and said he was wanted for the robbery of the Bank of Hulbert, Cherokee county, Oklahoma. He said his brother Charles and a third man not named obtained $2,855 in the robbery.

The sheriff of Cherokee county notified the police to hold Price as there was a reward for his arrest. Price, the police said, confessed that only twelve persons suffering from alcoholism were treated there yesterday. That is the lowest number for Christmas in the history of the institution.

Minor raids were made by prohibition agents, liquor being confiscated in several places visited.

BASSINGER OUT ON BOND HERE

Bolen Releases Alleged Murder on Bond of $8,000.00.

T. J. Bassinger of Allen, held in the county jail here pending a second trial on a charge of murder, was released Sunday, Dec. 24, when he made bond in the sum of $8,000 on order granting the bond after a habeas corpus hearing before District J. W. Bolen. The order for bond was given on December 19, and the bond was met on December 24.

Bassinger is charged with having murdered the fresh born babe of his daughter, Ethel. He was charged in the first trial, held in July, with having been the father of the infant.

The trial resulted in a disagreement by the jury and the case went over for a second hearing. No date for the next trial has been set. Bassinger was held in the county jail here until released Sunday.

Search Started for Tug

CLEVELAND, Dec. 26.—A vigorous search for the tug Cornelius, which disappeared last Thursday was continued today notwithstanding the vessel with its crew of eight was given up as lost last night. Not all of the families of the members of the crew had given up hope.

Dan Cupid Busy Here Xmas

It doesn't matter whether anyone else enjoyed Christmas or not, but Dan Cupid surely enjoyed himself here this holiday season.

Taking advantage of the spirit of the season he got in some good work and before the holidays closed had seven couples linked together. And to add to this, several other Ada couples are understood to have left town and married.

Records at the court clerk's office this morning showed the marriage licenses for seven couples had been issued since closing time Friday. Those obtaining licenses were listed as follows:

B. Fulton and Thelma Vaden, both of Ada; George W. Edwards and Ollie Holland, both of Jessie; John Norton and Mary Ewing, both of Hominy; J. W. Garves and Sarah Stark of Connerville; H. E. Ross and Esther Harris, both of Ada; L. M. Bray and Martha LaFever, both of Ada; Glen W. Fowler and Sylvia Moss, both of Ada.

CHRISTMAS AT ADA PASSES QUIETLY

Christmas in Ada was a merry but quiet affair, speaking from the police viewpoint.

"Everybody had a good time," Wick Adair, chief of police said, "but few were roudy or disorderly."

Twelve arrests were made, nine for drunkenness and three for carrying concealed weapons. Fines of $19.75 in the pistol carrying charges and $8.75 for the drunk charges were assessed.

Police pointed out that for the most part those arrested were "regular customers." They take this as evidence that although many may have been guilty of drinking, few got drunk enough to appear disorderly or prove a disturbance to the peace of the city.

Kids enjoyed the holidays with fire works and although police made an effort to keep the explosives from the main business district, a considerable amount was exploded. Dealers reported that a large rush on the supply practically exhausted it.

Stock Salesman is Arrested Charged With Mails Misuse

(By the Associated Press)

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 26.—William L. Cunningham, a stock salesman, was being held by police today for Baltimore authorities who said they wished to question him as to the whereabouts of Austin H. Montgomery, under indictment in Maryland on a charge of using the mails in the scheme to defraud. Cunningham according to police, said Montgomery was in Mexico City. Cunningham denied he had any part in the alleged transactions, which resulted in Montgomery's indictment. He said he was en route from Montgomery to Mexico City.

FIVE MEN UNDER ASSAULT CHARGE

One Man Shot, Two in Jail and Two Loose in Assault Case.

(By the Associated Press)

BARTLESVILLE, Dec. 26.—One man is dying, two others are in the county jail awaiting trial on a charge of assaulting a young woman, and authorities are today scouring the surrounding country in an effort to apprehend two other men who are said to have been implicated in the assault—the culmination of a Christmas eve party late Saturday night at Ramona, near here.

Merie Wrone and Fair Garner are held in the county jail charged with attacking Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Volger on the outskirts of Ramona, beating Mr. Volger on the head with a gun to unconsciousness and then assaulting his wife. Officers are searching for two men, one by the name of Brame Popejoy, who are charged with taking a part in the attack on the couple, who live in Tulsa. Rex Parks is the man who is said to be dying in a hospital here.

Mrs. Volger is said to have made a statement to officers in which she said that she was attacked by Fair Gardner while Parks, Popejoy and the other man held her. Mr. Volger charged that Garner is the man who struck him over the head, knocking him unconscious.

Parks is said by officers to have been shot by Charles Sayers, Ramona peace officer, when he resisted arrest.

Czecho Slavs Find New Budget Slash for Coming Year

(By the Associated Press)

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Dec. 26.—The budget of the republic of Czechoslovakia for 1923 shows a deficit of about 560,000,000 Czech crowns, which is 370,000,000 crowns less than the deficit for 1922, and 170,000,000 crowns less than that for 1921.

There are two interesting features in the document. One is the setting forth of the salaries of public officials separate from all other items, so the total can readily be seen, and the other is that next year the budget is to be submitted to parliament in the form of a commercial balance sheet. This latter feature will make it possible for parliament to determine whether the socialization of industries is more productive and profitable than the use of private capital.

Public expenditure in Czechoslovakia reached its maximum last year. The cost of running the government has increased steadily since the founding of the republic four years ago. But 1923 promises a considerable reduction which ultimately may be greater than is hoped for now. The 1923 figures show expenses of 19,379,000,000 Czech crowns, and revenue of 18,310,000,000.

BAPTISTS GET LIBERAL DONATIONS OF FLOUR

Saturday the Baptist church received 3,000 pounds of flour from various individuals for distribution to the needy. They placed some 700 or 800 pounds where it was needed and turned the rest of it over to the Red Cross for future use. This will afford timely assistance to the organization in its relief work for the remainder of the winter.

WHAT OF 1923?

Now that Christmas is a thing of the past, it is time for future planning and action. This year has not been so bad as 1921, and we believe that 1923 will see continued improvement in every line. Agriculture ought to be more remunerative and with the improved agricultural situation other business can naturally expect to improve with it.

So far as Ada as a city is concerned, we look for the greatest building program in its history. The chances are that we will get a garment factory. The cement plant is starting a building program, which, we understand, will continue for some time if enough water can be seen to keep the mammoth plant running. Mr. Gowing reports the outlook for glass manufacturing is encouraging and we look for a good year with the giant glass plant north of the city.

We are informed that prospects for getting a steel roller mill here are more or less encouraging. Mr. Atkinson of the pickle factory will probably enlarge his plant. The other manufacturing plants are planning improvements instead of sitting still or going back.

Now what can we do as citizens to further the progress, for after all it takes effort to build a city? We can boost, whether we are at home or away from home. We can tell of the wonderful water we have, the gas, the oil, the coal, the railroads, and other things that manufacturing plants are interested in.

Then, too, the time has come when we shall have to get more water into the city. The city officials will probably have something definite to announce along this line before long, and it will be up to us citizens to co-operate with them and help put over a building program. The cities of this state which are blessed with good water are to have a decided advantage over those which have to depend upon surface lakes or wells for their water supply.

Ada has approximately 10,000 people. With this ten thousand working as one unit to build a city, progress is certain. Naturally we all expect the oil fields to open up in 1923 and there are ways by which we can help there, but co-operation in that line is limited. There is no limit upon the amount of good the individuals can do in boosting to make this a better distributing point or a better manufacturing point.

THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

The Red Cross was enabled by the donations to the empty stocking fund to carry Christmas cheer into some 35 or 40 homes in Ada where there was little prospect for anything but a dreary time while others were rejoicing. The churches of the city and some of the fraternal orders also did good work so that no one was knowingly passed up. The citizens of Ada again proved that they are fully alive to the Christian duty of carrying comfort to the unfortunate and reminding them in a tangible way that the spirit of brotherly love is not yet dead. In the hurry and rush of everyday business affairs the average citizen may appear at times to be overlooking a duty, but the spark of human sympathy is still alive in his breast and when occasion demands he proves that he is not unmindful of his duty to his fellows.

The ladies who put over the organization of the community chorus are to be congratulated on their success. Also, the ones who made this success possible through their financial backing are to be commended on their good judgment. In the first place the city will need such an organization when on the completion of the convention hall it becomes a convention center and has guests to entertain. In the next place it makes it possible for those who are musically inclined to get the best of instruction without cost to themselves. It will also add to the musical interests of the city and create a musical atmosphere of a high standard.

Some men are so firmly fixed in their opinions that they refuse to try to learn anything outside of what little they already know. They are like the mule headed man who was lost in the woods for a couple of days. When finally located by a searching party it was found that he had a compass and was asked why he did not use it to get his bearings. He replied that he tried to but that the blamed thing persisted in pointing southwest, he refused to be guided by it.

"There are 1211 state jobs to be filled within the next four months and the last report shows a shortage of applications, only 46,007 having applied. There may be a better crop when real cold weather sets in," says a press bulletin from Oklahoma City.

The Debt Has Been Paid

(Enid Events)

During his speech making tour of this country Mr. Clemenceau was singularly unfortunate in some of his allusions. Speaking in Memorial Convention Hall in Washington, the national headquarters of the Daughters of the American Revolution, he reminded his audience that France had come to the aid of America in 1776. "We answered your call," said he. "Now are you going to answer ours?" Apparently the distinguished Frenchman thinks the United States still owes a moral debt to France on account of what his country did for us in the Revolution. In his quip he gave no credit for what we did in the world war but it has been the notion of most of us that what we did in 1918 repaid our obligation to France about twenty times.

In the billions we spent on the war, the number of soldiers we sent to France, and the number of American lives lost in the struggle, we exceeded a thousand times over the aid extended us by France in the Revolution.

Moreover, the United States preserved the independence of France in 1918 just as surely as France hastened the independence of America in 1776. It is apparent that both the moral and material debt we owed to France was completely wiped out in 1918.

Our people are tired of being told otherwise.

Benefits of Farm Credits (Kansas City Journal)

The war finance corporation announces it has loaned nearly $450,000,000 to American agriculture during the critical period of depression in the last year. Intransmitting its report to congress, it says the real value of the work done does not lie in the advance made, but in the restoration of confidence in the credit stability of rural regions.

The benefits of government loans to farmers reach much farther than even that. They facilitate the marketing of agricultural products, and thus assist the railroads in taking care of national transportation demands. The work of the war finance corporation, therefore, affects every branch of national industry. Besides this, it is an axiom that unless agriculture, the basic industry, is stable, no other industry can be.

One of the factors which threatens the stability of all industry is seasonal movement. This is particularly true in the agricultural and coal industries, which glut the arteries of transportation at a time when demands are made on them from every direction. Farm credits, because they enable a better distribution of marketing activities tend to relieve congestion.

The Manufacturers' Record touches on this point in an editorial in the current issue. "If agricultural credits did no more than relieve, in any measure, traffic congestion, they would be worth while," it says. "They cannot relieve traffic congestion without also increasing the earning power of freight cars in general, which means the earning power of the roads. This, in turn, means inevitably lower rates.

Farm credits are not in the nature of a gratuity or a bonus. By granting them, the government justifiably participates in the banking industry to its own profit, establishing a stability and certainly of agricultural credit than other wise could not exist. President Harding has realized the necessity of adequate and easily available assistance to farmers and devoted not a small part of his last message to the subject. The program he advocates will bear fruit in more ways than one.

My Biggest Thrill (By Gloria Swanson)

There are two kinds of thrills, thrills when one's life is at stake and thrills of happiness. My biggest thrill of the first sort came in motion pictures. Those who saw "Male and Female" will remember the scene where I lay with my body under the claws of a lion. I'll never forget that incident as long as I live. My life was at the mercy of a wild animal—and the revolver held in the hand of Cecil B. De Mille.

That thrill, however, and I say this with no idea of lapsing into the sentimental, paled into nothingness alongside of the moment when they first put my baby in my arms. Of all the thrills that the world offers that is the greatest. To have a little atom of humanity close to you and know it is the greatest gift life offers is a divine thrill indeed. The emotions respond when one's life is in danger, but that sort of thrill is a mere momentary excitant whereas the thrill of happiness, the thrill of being a mother, lasts and lasts and lasts.

Miss Swanson will be seen as a mother in "The Impossible Mrs. Bell" at the McSwain theatre today. It is a picture of a mother's great sacrifice and the victim of gross injustice. Conrad Nagel plays opposite the beautiful star in a congenial role.

Farmers' Column

By Byron Merrill

Farm Demonstration Head Quits
STILLWATER.—W. A. Conner, director of the Extension Division of the A. and M. College since July 1, has resigned that position with the request that the resignation become effective December 31.

Conner, before taking the directorship eighteen months ago, was associate editor of the Oklahoma Farmer. It is to return to that publication at an increased salary and wider opportunity for advancement he explains, that he is resigning. His term of office would not expire until June 30, 1923, but a year's work is being rounded out with the filing of the director's annual report, due January 1, and Conner asks to be permitted to retire at that time so that the new year's work can be both planned and executed by his successor, thus causing as little disruption as possible in the organization.

The director of extension has supervision of farm demonstration work in the state, including the work done by county agents and a corps of farm specialists working out of the college.

Pruning Grape Vines

"Grapes are seldom pruned too severely," says F. M. Rofts, professor of horticulture at Oklahoma A. and M. College. "The only mistake that may be made will be the removing of all last year's fruiting wood.

"There are many systems of grape pruning. However, bear in mind that last year's wood gives rise to the current year's wood upon which grapes are borne. Therefore, it is essential to leave some of last year's wood where the vines are trained to two wires.

"A good system is to leave a year's cane extending in each direction for each wire and cut these canes back in proportion to the strength of the same. For the average strength cane leave from six to eight buds on each. Thus four canes of eight buds each will give rise to thirty-two fruiting shoots.

"Where grapes are properly pruned the bunches will be larger, more compact and the berries will be larger."

Spacing of Cotton

An experiment was started last spring on the farm of the Oklahoma Agricultural Experiment Station to determine the best distance to space cotton in the row. It has been claimed that if cotton is planted thicker than ordinarily done the vegetative branches do not account mature more rapidly and as a result give a quicker maturing crop. It has been claimed also that a larger yield can be obtained by closer planting in the row. The results of our test for this year have been tabulated and put in mimeograph form for distribution. It is the plan to continue the experiment for a number of years, and publish the results of the preceding years.

Neither the amount of the first picking nor the total yield seems to be influenced by the distance in the row. Where the cotton was drilled and not thinned the yield was 703 pounds of seed cotton per acre.

DYING VETERAN PLEADS TO REST IN OKLAHOMA

OKLAHOMA CITY.—"My prayers are that I may be buried in earth's heaven—Oklahoma."

Such was the conclusion of an appeal of Robinsos C. Merriman, Citizen of Oklahoma and former service man, who is now in a tuberculosis hospital at Milledgeville, Georgia, to his former associates in the army to remember him during the holidays.

The letter was addressed to General Roy Hoffman, whose services Merriman was seeking in securing compensation. He took tuberculosis while in the service.

"If the Old First regiment has a club tell the boys to send me some smokes," Merriman wrote. If Captain McLeas or Captain Lockreath are there tell them my condition and ask them to ask the boys of the old company to remember me, for I am down and out and sick, and I want to see them again if it is the Lord's will.

"There are many things that will make my last days more pleasant. Papers, books, magazines—little things like that will be appreciated. Anything from a stamp to a dollar bill will be highly received."

Merriman had a wide acquaintance in Oklahoma before the war. For ten years he was a typewriter repairman, and traveled over the entire state repairing machines.

MORTALITY FROM TYPHOID FEVER SHOWS INCREASE

WASHINGTON, D. C. Dec. 26.—The Department of Commerce, thru the Bureau of the Census, announces that there were over eight thousand deaths from typhoid fever in 1921 in the registration area, which comprises 82 per cent of the total population of the United States. The death rate from this disease was 9 per 100,000 population in 1921 as compared with 7 in 1920.

In 1921 Rhode Island had the lowest adjusted rate (2.6 per 100,000 population), while South Carolina had the highest (26.5).

Of the 11 states showing rates by color, the lowest adjusted rate for the white population in 1921 was 3.6 and the lowest for the colored was 1.9, both for New York state, while the highest and adjusted rate for the white population was 24.6 for Kentucky and for the colored 40.7 for Tennessee.

For the 27 states contained in the registration area of 1917 the death rate from typhoid fever per 100,000 population was 13.5 in 1917, 12.6 in 1918, 9.2 in 1919, 7.8 in 1920, and 8.7 in 1921.

A tea for the benefit of the Ada Chapter, Order of the Rainbow, will be given by Miss Kathryn Wilenick at her home, 226 East Thirteenth street, Wednesday afternoon and evening. A silver offering will be accepted and the money will be used for the betterment of the organization.

Hours announced will be from 3 to 5 in the afternoon and 7 to 9 in the evening. Guests arriving at 3 o'clock will leave at four, and guests arriving at seven will leave at eight, in order to care for the large number of callers expected. Everybody is cordially invited to attend.

An interesting program in which members of the girls' organization will participate, will be rendered. The affair will be one of the many social attractions of the holiday season.

Firemen's Christmas Dance Was Big Success

Only words of compliment and praise were to be heard today concerning the first annual Christmas dance given Christmas night by the Firemen.

The dance started nearly an hour late due to the late arrival of Dinty Moore's orchestra, which came from Oklahoma City overland. More than 350 people attended the affair and danced until after one o'clock.

Somer Jones, fire chief, and director of the event, said today that he had received no complaints. The dances were clean and without disturbances he said, and everybody concluded their holiday celebrations in enjoying the pastime of the evening.

Decorations of the city hall were elaborate and appropriate. The hall was put in splendid condition for dancing. Chairs were furnished to those who did not care to dance. Refreshments were served also.

More than a hundred out of town people were here to attend the dance. Many people from Sulphur, Konawa, Sasekwa, Coalgate, Allen, Holdenville, Stratford and other nearby towns were here. Firemen said the affair was a success financially also. It is planned to make the event an annual one and the dance enthusiast has asked that this be done.

Weems-Vernon

Friends of the bridal couple in Ada received a surprise here during the Christmas holidays when James O. Vernon, athletic director of the Okemah high school, arrived in the city from Sherman with his bride, Miss Georgia Weems of the Francis high school faculty.

They were married in Sherman, Texas, at the First Baptist church by Rev. R. T. L. Holecomb, pastor, on December 24. They arrived home on Christmas eve and will spend a few days here with relatives and friends.

Miss Weems is a graduate of the college and has many friends in Ada. She is now employed in the Francis high school and will finish her work there.

Mr. Vernon is a former student of the college here and was at one time principal of the Irving ward school of Ada. For the past two years he had been head of athletics at the Okemah high school.

EYE WITNESS TO DISCLOSE FACTS IN LAKE TRAGEDY

Farmer Recognizes Men in the Masked Band Who Flogged Pair.

WITNESS IS HIDDEN

Prosecutors Say Farmer is Held in Readiness for Inquiry.

(By the Associated Press)
BASTROP, Dec. 26.—That the state will be able to establish through an eye witness the identity of several members of a masked mob which last August kidnapped five Mer Rouge residents, including Watt Daniels, and Thomas Richards, whose decapitated bodies were taken from a nearby lake last week, was the statement today of investigators who have been working on the case for several months.

The identities will be made, the secret service men said, through testimony at the open hearing ordered by Governor John Parker to begin here January 5, of a farmer whose home is near Oakridge, in the southeastern part of Morhause parish, who they declare, told them he witnessed the seizure and spirit away of the quintet and recognized some of the abductors when they lifted their hoods to drink water.

The farmer, who investigators say they have in hand, was held up by the band on the Mer Rouge highway the night of the kidnapping and commanded to go to a nearby ranch and get a bucket of water for the thirsty band. He obeyed and when he returned he was directed to take a seat on a log. He is said to have declared that he recognized several members of the band when they raised their masks to drink from the bucket.

The investigators declined to disclose the present whereabouts of the farmer but it was intimated that he was somewhere in Mississippi under protection of a government officer. It was stated that he would be produced when wanted.

Plans for the open hearing here will be formulated at a conference in New Orleans next Thursday of those conducting the inquiry.

Those acquainted with the character of the witnesses the state will call are authority for the statement that they will not fear to testify to all they know. It was this spirit of defiance to the mob of masked men that is believed to have led to the death of Daniels and Richards.

Republican Leaders Confer on Policies for Borah Amendment

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—Senate republican leaders conferred today in an effort to agree on what change they will seek in the proposal of Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, for an international economic and disarmament conference. The proposal is embodied in an amendment to the naval appropriation bill, which is to come before the senate tomorrow when it reassembles after the Christmas holidays.

A large part of the republican membership and number of democrats are understood to be against the Borah amendment in its present form. The views of President Harding, Secretary Hughes and other administration officials have been sought by senator who have talked with them will not disclose what opinions were expressed.

Five Masked Men Fail in Attempt Rob Station Safe

WELEETKA, Dec. 26.—Five masked men made an unsuccessful attempt to blow the St. Louis, San Francisco station safe here last night after imprisoning two ticket agents in a box car. The safe witnessed the blast from a charge of dynamite and the robbers fled after setting fire to a motor train on the track which operates between Tulsa and Okmulgee. The train was slightly damaged.

Arthur Sulsey, who approached the station while the bandits were at work, was knocked senseless with the butt of a revolver as he crossed the street and was taken to a hospital. His condition is not serious.

JAY.—A. J. Rogers, living near Leach, was accidentally shot while out on his farm bird-hunting. Two or three shot hit Rogers, one of them striking him in the neck, but none of the wounds is considered serious.

E. S. HARAWAY'S HOME DESTROYED BY FIRE

The home of E. S. Haraway at the extreme end of South Broadway, was destroyed by fire Monday evening. It caught in some unknown manner between the ceiling and roof and the entire upper part of the house was in flames before it was discovered. The family barely had time to escape. A piano and grandfather were about all of the contents of the house saved. For a time other houses in the same block were in danger but prompt action prevented a spread of the flames.

Mr. Haraway states that he is unable to give an estimate of his loss yet. The building was constructed of brick and the walls were apparently not greatly damaged. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

The fire company responded promptly to the alarm but the fire had made too much headway for them to save the house. Zip West, one of the firemen, came in contact with a live wire and was knocked down but suffered no serious injury.

Xmas Services at Church of Christ Judged Successful

Reports from the Church of Christ on East Main street are that the Christmas services were very successful. Appropriate programs for the observing of Christ's birthday were carried out at morning and evening services Sunday.

Elder Brandon of Centrahoma preached at the morning service and Elder Oscar L. Hays preached at the evening service. The closing sermon for the year will be delivered next Sunday by Brother Shipman.

Clothing was distributed among the poor during the Christmas season. Women of the church met regularly in days prior to Christmas in an effort to prepare clothing for distribution.

Young people's meeting Sunday was well attended. Those in charge report an increase in interest at this season of the year.

BASSINGER OUT ON BOND HERE

Bolen Releases Alleged Murder on Bond of $8,000.00.

T. J. Bassinger of Allen, held in the county jail here pending a second trial on a charge of murder, was released Sunday, Dec. 24, when he made bond in the sum of $8,000 on order granting the bond after a habeas corpus hearing before District J. W. Bolen. The order for bond was given on December 19, and the bond was met on December 24.

Bassinger is charged with having murdered the fresh born babe of his daughter, Ethel. He was charged in the first trial, held in July, with having been the father of the infant.

The trial resulted in a disagreement by the jury and the case went over for a second hearing. No date for the next trial has been set. Bassinger was held in the county jail here until released Sunday.

ADA GENEROUS TO POOR; MANY HOMES CHEERED

Christmas Spirit Extended to Unfortunate by Local Clubs.

CHURCHES IN LINE

3,000 Pounds of Flour is Distributed by Local Baptist Class.

Final check-up of the charity expenditure in the city was being made today by Mrs. Orville Sneed, secretary of the Red Cross and United Charities after the wholesale distribution of Christmas dinners and other useful articles to the poor people of Ada during the Christmas holidays.

Mrs. Sneed said that the Red Cross directly communicated with approximately 35 families, and that churches took care of about 65 families. She said that a quota of families for each church was given out and that she believed none had been forgotten.

Every church in the city took care of poor people, she said, which did much to relieve the demand on the charity organizations. "People have been more liberal this year than ever before," Mrs. Sneed declared. "They not only contribute to the cause with money but were liberal with candies, fruits, clothing, foodstuffs and other articles."

More than 3,000 pounds of flour was contributed to the cause by the members of the First Baptist church Business Men's Bible class, which meets at the McSwain theatre. A large quantity of this was given to the people allotted to the Baptist church and the remainder was turned over to Mrs. Sneed.

From all sides today came reports of rejoicing in every quarter. Churches had banner days with congregations larger than ordinary. Christmas trees for the kiddies were held at many of the religious institutions, some on Saturday night and others on Sunday night.

Original and elaborate programs were rendered at many of the churches, all in keeping with the season. The spirit of goodwill and joy prevailed throughout, every indication shows.

CHRISTMAS AT ADA PASSES QUIETLY

Christmas in Ada was a merry but quiet affair, speaking from the police viewpoint.

"Everybody had a good time," said Adair, chief of police, "but few were roudy or disorderly."

Twelve arrests were made, nine for drunkenness and three for carrying concealed weapons. Fines of $19.75 in the pistol carrying charges and $8.75 for the drunk charges were assessed.

Police pointed out that for the most part those arrested were "regular customers". They take this as evidence that although many may have been guilty of drinking, few got drunk enough to appear disorderly or prove a disturbance to the peace of the city.

Kids enjoyed the holidays with fire works and although police made an effort to keep the explosives from the main business district, a considerable amount was exploded. Dealers reported that the picture would be shown again today.

At the American one of the largest crowds ever to fill the place was reported. "The Black Panthers Club" was the picture on exhibition.

No accurate estimate of the number of people who attended the shows here, but all figures available place the total far above the 4,000 mark.

BELIEVED WRECK OF FREIGHT NOT PART OF SCHEME

Authorities Declare an Attempt Made to Wreck Special Train.

SWITCH FOUND OPEN

Body of Man is Found Buried Under Debris of Train Wreck.

(By the Associated Press)

MUSKOGEE, Dec. 26.—What railroad officials believe was an attempt to wreck the Rainbow Special, the fastest train on the Missouri Pacific line between Kansas City and Hot Springs, Ark., occurred between Vian and Gore, in Sequoyah county, Oklahoma, about three o'clock this morning, when a freight train, north bound, was wrecked.

Railroad officials declare that an open switch was responsible for the wreck in which two members of the train crew were badly hurt. They said the lamp on the switch and lock had been removed and that the switch had been thrown open.

The freight train, en route from Van Buren to Wagoner, was derailed. The engine, tender and seven freight cars were thrown into a ditch. Engineer Frank Herrick and Fireman George Johnson of Van Buren sustained serious injuries. They were removed to a hospital at Ft. Smith, Ark.

Both men were buried beneath their engine when it tipped over as it leaped from the rails after striking the switch.

The Rainbow Special was due at the switch about the same hour as the freight but the passenger train en route from Hot Springs to Kansas city was two hours late. That the alleged wreckers had designs on the passenger train instead of the freight train is the theory that railroad authorities are working on. They declined to state whether they believed the object of the wreck was to rob passengers.

When a wrecking crew later began to clear away the debris they found the badly crushed body of a man in one of the battered freight cars which went into the ditch. It is believed the man was a tramp. No marks of identification were found on the man and he was buried this afternoon at the expense of the county.

Chamber of Commerce to Keep Calendar of Entertainments

The Chamber of Commerce will keep a record of all entertainments in the city, beginning immediately, according to an announcement this morning by Ralph Waner, secretary. All people in charge of an entertainment is asked to call Mr. Waner, telephone 506, and let him know when an entertainment is booked or ask for information when booking one. The object is to keep this information for those planning entertainments in order that they may avoid conflicts.

Mr. Jones was for a number of years a resident of Ada, running a transfer business while living here.

BAPTISTS GET LIBERAL DONATIONS OF FLOUR

Saturday the Baptist church received 3,000 pounds of flour from various individuals for distribution to the needy. They placed some 700 or 800 pounds where it was needed and turned the rest of it over to the Red Cross for future use. This will afford timely assistance to the organization in its relief work for the remainder of the winter.

WHAT OF 1923?

Now that Christmas is a thing of the past, it is time for future planning and action. This year has not been so bad as 1921, and we believe that 1923 will see continued improvement in every line. Agriculture ought to be more remunerative and with the improved agricultural situation other business can naturally expect to improve with it.

So far as Ada as a city is concerned, we look for the greatest building program in its history. The chances are that we will get a garment factory. The cement plant is starting a building program, which, we understand, will continue for some time if enough water can be seen to keep the mammoth plant running. Mr. Gowing reports the outlook for glass manufacturing is encouraging and we look for a good year with the giant glass plant north of the city.

We are informed that prospects for getting a steel roller mill here are more or less encouraging. Mr. Atkinson of the pickle factory will probably enlarge his plant. The other manufacturing plants are planning improvements instead of sitting still or going back.

Now what can we do as citizens to further the progress, for after all it takes effort to build a city? We can boost, whether we are at home or away from home. We can tell of the wonderful water we have, the gas, the oil, the coal, the railroads, and other things that manufacturing plants are interested in.

Then, too, the time has come when we shall have to get more water into the city. The city officials will probably have something definite to announce along this line before long, and it will be up to us citizens to co-operate with them and help put over a building program. The cities of this state which are blessed with good water are to have a decided advantage over those which have to depend upon surface lakes or wells for their water supply.

Ada has approximately 10,000 people. With this ten thousand working as one unit to build a city, progress is certain. Naturally we all expect the oil fields to open up in 1923 and there are ways by which we can help there, but co-operation in that line is limited. There is no limit upon the amount of good the individuals can do in boosting to make this a better distributing point or a better manufacturing point.

THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

The Red Cross was enabled by the donations to the empty stocking fund to carry Christmas cheer into some 35 or 40 homes in Ada where there was little prospect for anything but a dreary time while others were rejoicing. The churches of the city and some of the fraternal orders also did good work so that no one was knowingly passed up. The citizens of Ada again proved that they are fully alive to the Christian duty of carrying comfort to the unfortunate and reminding them in a tangible way that the spirit of brotherly love is not yet dead. In the hurry and rush of everyday business affairs the average citizen may appear at times to be overlooking a duty, but the spark of human sympathy is still alive in his breast and when occasion demands he proves that he is not unmindful of his duty to his fellows.

The ladies who put over the organization of the community chorus are to be congratulated on their success. Also, the ones who made this success possible through their financial backing are to be commended on their good judgment. In the first place the city will need such an organization when on the completion of the convention hall it becomes a convention center and has guests to entertain. In the next place it makes it possible for those who are musically inclined to get the best of instruction without cost to themselves. It will also add to the musical interests of the city and create a musical atmosphere of a high standard.

Some men are so firmly fixed in their opinions that they refuse to try to learn anything outside of what little they already know. They are like the mule headed man who was lost in the woods for a couple of days. When finally located by a searching party it was found that he had a compass and was asked why he did not use it to get his bearings. He replied that he tried to but that the blamed thing persisted in pointing southwest, he refused to be guided by it.

Farmers' Column

Farm Demonstration Head Quits

STILLWATER.—W. A. Conner, director of the Extension Division of the A. and M. College since July 1, has resigned that position with the request that the resignation become effective December 31.

Conner, before taking the directorship eighteen months ago, was associate editor of the Oklahoma Farmer. It is to return to that publication at an increased salary and wider opportunity for advancement he explains, that he in resigning. His term of office would not expire until June 30, 1923, but a year's work is being rounded out with the filing of the director's annual report, due January 1, and Conner asks to be permitted to retire at that time so that the new year's work can be both planned and executed by his successor, thus causing as little disruption as possible in the organization.

The director of extension has supervision of farm demonstration work in the state, including the work done by county agents and a corps of farm specialists working out of the college.

Pruning Grape Vines

"Grapes are seldom pruned too severely," says F. M. Rolfs, professor of horticulture at Oklahoma A. and M. College. "The only mistake that may be made will be the removing of all last year's fruiting wood.

There are many systems of grape pruning, however, bear in mind that last year's wood gives rise to the current year's wood upon which grapes are borne. Therefore, it is essential to leave some of last year's wood where the vines are trained to two wires.

A good system is to leave a year's cane extending in each direction for each wire and cut these canes back in proportion to the strength of the same. For the average strength cane leave from six to eight buds on each. Thus four canes of eight buds each will give rise to thirty-two fruiting shoots.

An average of two good bunches to each of the above thirty-two shoots would produce a good average yield.

"Where grapes are properly pruned the bunches will be larger, more compact and the berries will be larger."

Spacing of Cotton

An experiment was started last spring on the farm of the Oklahoma Agricultural Experiment Station to determine the best distance to space cotton in the row. It has been claimed that if cotton is planted thicker than ordinarily done the vegetative branches do not account mature more rapidly and as a result give a quicker maturing crop. It has been claimed also that a larger yield can be obtained by closer planting in the row. The results of our test for this year have been tabulated and put in mimeograph form for distribution. It is the plan to continue the experiment for a number of years and publish the results of the preceding years.

Neither the amount of the first picking nor the total yield seems to be influenced by the distance in the row. Where the cotton was drilled and not thinned the yield was 703 pounds of seed cotton per acre.

Where the cotton was six inches apart in the row the yield was 722 pounds; 12 inches apart 779 pounds. The distance in the row was increased from six inches up to 48 inches, each increase amounting to 6 inches.

The cotton 48 inches apart in the row gave 684 pounds of seed cotton per acre and 42 inches apart in the row gave 779 pounds per acre which is the same as given by the cotton which was 12 inches and 18 inches apart in the row. Some of the cotton was drilled and then blocked to different distances, six inches twelve inches, and so on up to forty-eight inches. By blocking is meant leaving several stalks in a hill.

The average yields of the cotton planted in the row and thinned to one stalk is 755 pounds per acre the average for the blocked cotton, that is, leaving several stalks in a hill, is 768 pounds per acre.

No definite conclusions can be drawn from one year's results and from the results of this year on account of the dry weather. So far as this one year's results are concerned, the date of maturity and the yield are not influenced appreciably by either the distance in the row or the number of plants in the hill.

FRUIT GROWERS MAY PRODUCE CORELESS APPLE

By the Associated Press

MONTREAL, Dec. 26.—Much enthusiasm was evoked at the fall meeting of the Pomological and Fruit Growing Society of the Province of Quebec by the announcement of the discovery at Abbotsford of a seedless and coreless variety of the famous apple.

Professor T. C. Sears of the Authors (Mines) Horticultural college who was present, examined the fruit and pronounced it famous in every essential detail. He said if it could be reproduced it would prove of great value.

The seedless apple was discovered by accident and the exhibitor had no idea how it was developed. He believes, however, that the variety could be perpetuated by grafts.

According to reports, Germany is reorganizing its war college.

Benefits of Farm Credits
(Kansas City Journal)

The war finance corporation announces it has loaned nearly $450,000,000 to American agriculture during the critical period of depression in the last year. Intransmitting its report to congress, it says the real value of the work done does not lie in the advance made, but in the restoration of confidence in the credit stability of rural regions.

The benefits of government loans to farmers reach much farther than even that. They facilitate the marketing of agricultural products, and thus assist the railroads in taking care of national transportation demands. The work of the war finance corporation, therefore, affects every branch of national industry. Besides this, it is an axiom that unless agriculture, the basic industry, is stable, no other industry can be.

One of the factors which threatens the stability of all industry is seasonal movement. This is particularly true in the agricultural and coal industries, which glut the arteries of transportation at a time when demands are made on them from every direction. Farm credits, because they enable a better distribution of marketing activities tend to relieve congestion.

The Manufacturers' Record touches on this point in an editorial in the current issue. "If agricultural credits did no more than relieve, in any measure, traffic congestion, they would be worth while, it says. "They cannot relieve traffic congestion without also increasing the earning power of freight cars in general, which means the earning power of the roads. This, in turn, means inevitably lower rates."

Farm credits are not in the nature of a gratuity or a bonus. By granting them, the government justifiably participates in the banking industry to its own profit, establishing a stability and certainly of agricultural credit than other-

My Biggest Thrill

(By Gloria Swanson)

There are two kinds of thrills, thrills when one's life is at stake and thrills of happiness. My biggest thrill of the first sort came in motion pictures. Those who saw "Male and Female" will remember the scene where I lay with my body under the claws of a lion. I'll never forget that incident as long as I live. My life was at the mercy of a wild animal—and the revolver held in the hand of Cecil B. De Mille.

That thrill, however, and I say this with no idea of lapsing into the sentimental, paled into nothingness alongside of the moment when they first put my baby in my arms. Of all the thrills that the world offers that is the greatest. To have a little atom of humanity close to you and know it is the greatest gift life offers is a divine thrill indeed. The emotions respond when one's life is in danger, but that sort of thrill is a mere momentary excitant whereas the thrill of happiness, the thrill of being a mother, lasts and lasts and lasts.

Miss Swanson will be seen as a mother, in "The Impossible Mrs. Bellwether" at the McSwain theatre today. It is a picture of a mother's great sacrifice and the victim of gross injustice. Conrad Nagle plays a congenital role.

Hours as announced will be from 3 to 5 in the afternoon and 7 to 9 in the evening. Guests arriving at 3 o'clock will leave at four, and guests arriving at seven will leave at eight, in order to care for the large number of callers expected. Everybody is cordially invited to attend.

An interesting program in which members of the girls' organization will participate, will be rendered. The affair will be one of the many social attractions of the holiday season.

Firemen's Christmas Dance Was Big Success

Only words of compliment and praise were to be heard today concerning the first annual Christmas dance given Christmas night by the Firemen at the city hall.

The dance started nearly an hour late due to the late arrival of Dinty Moore's orchestra, which came from Oklahoma City overland. More than 350 people attended the affair and danced until after one o'clock.

Somer Jones, fire chief, and director of the event, said today that he had received no complaints. The dances were clean and without disturbances he said, and everybody concluded their holiday celebrations in enjoying the pastime of the evening.

Decorations of the city hall were elaborate and appropriate. The hall was put in splendid condition for dancing. Chairs were furnished to those who did not care to dance. Refreshments were served also.

More than a hundred out of town people were here to attend the dance. Many people from Sulphur, Konawa, Sasawka, Coalgate, Allen, Holdenville, Stratford and other nearby towns were here. Firemen said the affair was a success financially also. It is planned to make the event an annual one and the dance enthusiast has asked that this be done.

Weems-Vernon

Friends of the bridal couple in Ada received a surprise here during the Christmas holidays when James O. Vernon, athletic director of the Okemah high school, arrived in the city from Sherman with his bride, Miss Georgia Weems of the Francis high school faculty.

They were married in Sherman, Texas, at the First Baptist church by Rev. R. T. L. Holcomb, pastor, on December 24. They arrived home on Christmas eve and will spend a few days here with relatives and friends.

Miss Weems is a graduate of the college and has many friends in Ada. She is now employed in the Francis high school and will finish her work there.

Mr. Vernon is a former student of the college here and was at one time principal of the Irving ward school of Ada. For the past two years he had been head of athletics at the Okemah high school.

"There are many things that will make my last days more pleasant. Papers, books, magazines—little things like that will be appreciated. Anything from a stamp to a dollar bill will be thankfully received."

"I love old Oklahoma and I pray that my body may go back to rest in her soil—that my soul go to the happy hunting grounds from the old state."

Merryman had a wide acquaintance in Oklahoma before the war. For ten years he was a typewriter repairman, and traveled over the entire state repairing machines.

MORTALITY FROM TYPHOID FEVER SHOWS INCREASE

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 26.—The Department of Commerce, thru the Bureau of the Census, announces that there were over eight thousand deaths from typhoid fever in 1921 in the registration area, which comprises 82 per cent of the total population of the United States. The death rate from this disease was 9 per 100,000 population in 1921 as compared with 7 in 1910.

In 1921 Rhode Island had the lowest adjusted rate (2.6 per 100,000 population), while South Carolina had the highest (26.5).

Of the 11 states showing rates by color, the lowest adjusted rate for the white population in 1921 was 3.6 and the lowest for the colored was 1.9, both for New York state, while the highest and adjusted rate for the white population was 24.6 for Kentucky and for the colored 40.7 for Tennessee.

For the 27 states contained in the registration area of 1917 the death rate from typhoid fever per 100,000 population was 13.5 in 1917, 12.6 in 1918, 9.2 in 1919, 7.8 in 1920, and 8.7 in 1921.

Outing Party To Byng

Taking advantage of the beautiful weather at the Christmas season, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Bennett and family and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Smith and family with several friends motored to Byng where the day was spent in boating and hiking. A luncheon was spread in the afternoon.

Dunham-Norwood

Miss Mable Norwood and Stephen Dunham of Ada were married Christmas afternoon, December 25, 1922, at St. Luke's Methodist church by Rev. Forney Hutchinson. The bride's sister, Miss Josephine Norwood of Oklahoma City and Dennis Davis of Ada, were present.

Mrs. Dunham has been instructor of commercial branches in the local high school for several years and has won an enviable place in the hearts of the boys and girls who have attended school as well as the young people of the entire city. She has been a favorite with the young people since she came to the city and they will wish her much happiness in her married life.

Mr. Durham is one of the growing young business men of southern Oklahoma. He came here from Hugo when the Sutherland Lumber company was established and has been the man at the helm ever since. He is not only a good business man, but is active in every way for the betterment of the city.

The wedding was a distinct surprise to their friends here. They will spend a short honeymoon in Oklahoma City and then will return to Ada to make their home.

Author of "The Lone Star Ranger," "The U.P. Trail," "The Heritage of the Desert," Etc.

One of the most stirring and at the same time convincing and pleasing novels of the West is "Desert Gold." It is founded mainly on a recent border uprising, and in its descriptions of battles with Mexicans, the operations of raiders, of prospectors and others braving the perils of the desert, proves that portions of the West can still yield adventures as exciting as anything that happened in the old days; that there still is a land of gold, the development of which is attended by dangers and hardships sufficient to tax the courage of the most venturesome mortals. Along with the intense, dramatic action is a strong play of human hearts in which love and loyalty are ranged against ambition, hatred

HER WHITE HANDS

BY MILDRED WHITE

The shrewd surgeon sat looking at the girl, a half-mocking, half-indulgent expression in his gray eyes. The girl, amused, returned his gaze. She was lounging gracefully in the most comfortable chair her hostess' room afforded. She was a small creature, as daintily dressed and formed as a Dresden figure.

"Well," she asked, with mild interest, "what is the verdict?"

"Beg pardon," the big man said. "I dare say I was staring rudely; the unconscious rudeness born of studying one's patients."

"I," the girl objected, "am not a patient. Perhaps, however, you may have formed some helpful character diagnosis. Your scrutiny registered dissatisfaction. Where do I offend?"

Doctor Homer Amsden leaned forward impulsively; he took the young woman's hands in his own, looking down upon them. They were beautiful hands, the nails pink and tapering, the slender fingers, white and soft as velvet. The physician frowned.

"Doll's hands," he said, crossly. "The typical hand of the modern pleasure-loving and admired woman. Not one callous of worthy toll—not the hand of our mothers, palms roughened, in unselfish effort for home and family—broadened through loving labor."

The surgeon laughed shortly. "You must be commended for your good nature, at least," he said. "I have learned briskness and brutal frankness in the school of my profession."

"And have earned," added the girl, "a reputation, thereby, of skill. Tell me—I am curious—how do you happen to come to this humble Hampden?"

"I came at the request of a valued friend," the physician told her.

"You have met, of course, young Doctor Phillips? He is almost an idol here, and with reason. His life is practically given over to the villagers. If he were not held by enforced family ties Paul would make a name for himself in the bigger world. We were school companions. I, free from family obligation, went away, as they used to say, to make my fortune. Paul stayed because his widowed mother was a dependent invalid. His only sister, crippled from childhood, became an added burden. So Paul lives in this little corner of the world, a life of sacrifice and devotion, cheerful, uncomplaining in his solitary lot. Solitary in that sense that he may never be free to marry."

Coralie Curtis carefully adjusted her ruffled skirts.

"Don't you suppose," she asked, "that one day some Hampdon young woman will be glad to share his trials—for his dear sake?"

Paul's friend laughed reminiscently. "You have not," he said, "apparently met Paul's family."

"Difficulty?" questioned Coralie.

"For years," the doctor replied, "Paul has been begging to have the living-room of the old family home repainted to present needs; the other rooms modernized and made more cheerful. I see today the same riotous rose-paper, the same antiquated gloom. There is no ruler more despotic than your invalid."

Coralie sighed; her blue eyes between their dark-fringed lids were very grave.

"I am sorry," she said. "Paul Phillips is all worthy of happiness."

"You know him?"

"Only since I came here to visit this old friend of my mother's. I am now quite alone in the world and even considering making Hampdon my future home. Different from the great city—but friendly."

"I heard of you," the surgeon said, "immediately after my arrival."

Carelessly she seated herself before the piano; a melody rippled forth, sweet as a bird's song. "That," she laughed back at him, "the hands can do."

Paul telephoned the surgeon that night at the inn. "I've been busy over at the Hudson's," he explained, "two children down with diphtheria. Tried everywhere to get a nurse for Mrs. Hudson. Miss Curtis is visiting there, you know, and I tried to get her out before quarantine, but she would not go. Insisted on remaining to nurse those kids. 'If only'—Paul Phillips paused—"Miss Curtis escapes, she has never had the disease. Will you go with me to the skin-grafting case in the morning?"

"I will," answered the surgeon, abruptly, and hung up the receiver.

"If only Coralie does not contract the disease," he muttered.

The boy who had been badly burned welcomed the doctor next morning as the comforting event of his day, a shaking old grandmother, beat, troubled above him. "I don't know," she murmured, "why Miss Coralie didn't come last night, as usual."

"She could not come," Paul said. "She is in quarantine. We will have to do our best."

One month later, when Tony's wounds were healed, the surgeon came again to Hampdon. Coralie received him in the same pleasant living room. Smiling, she held out her hands; the surgeon clasped them close.

"If I might," he said, tenderly, "I would claim these little ministering hands, to keep them forever my own."

"They are patient hands," she said, softly, "and so, however long it may be, they will wait for Paul. Ready, meantime, to help him in his work, as may be."

Tattered Russians Look To America For Clothing Which Will Keep Them From Death

At the height of famine suffering in Russia, just before the harvest in 1922, the American Relief Administration was feeding 10,500,000 persons every day. In keeping with its policy of helping only in emergency, and where the recipients of charity can not help themselves, the American Relief Administration decided to confine its free feeding for this winter to one million of the neediest children and to sick people, shocking cases of need among professional classes, and nursing mothers. After January first when the 1922 crop will have been exhausted the child-feeding will be increased to 2,000,000. This sharp drop occasioned little flurry. The Russians seem willing to try to take up their own burden.

One call for help, however, has come so consistently and with such good cause that the American Relief Administration has felt it imperative to provide some channel for filling an increasingly bitter need. Reports from Colonel William N. Huske, director of the Russian Unit, and from all his aides, together with many petitions from schools and rural districts, have piled up overwhelming evidence of great suffering from lack of adequate clothing. It is estimated that more than one million children and several million adults are entering the winter with virtually no clothing this year. An overcoat in Russia costs a year's salary, and the American Relief Administration feeding kitchens see frequent cases of children brought to receive food, wrapped only in tattered sacks, dog-skins or horse-hides.

To meet this situation Herbert Hoover, Chairman of the American Relief Administration, has authorized a clothing remittance system similar in every way to the food remittance which has saved hundreds of thousands of lives. In addition to individual remittances, through which packages for delivery to specific persons in Russia can be ordered, the organization has made an appeal for all charitably inclined persons to purchase clothing remittances for general relief through the headquarters at 42 Broadway, New York City. All such remittances will be used in cases where the need is so pitiful that to estimate the gratitude of those helped would sound maudlin.

Each package contains enough clothing material to carry two children or one adult through the winter. DOUKHOBORS CONSIDERING RETURN TO RUSSIA

TORONTO, Dec. 26.—A report from Yorkton, Sask., says that there is a movement among the independent Doukhobors to migrate back to Russia, whence they came more than a quarter century ago. There are about 5,000 of the sect working farms outside the original Doukhobor communal colony over which Peter Verigin is the head. Verigin's followers in Saskatchewan and British Columbia are not involved.

Two agents from the independent districts, which have been formed by offshoots from the original communal colony, have been in Russia and have just returned to Canada. No definite information is available as to the nature of their report on the proposed track back to Europe.

The religious beliefs and practices of the "Doukhobors" have frequently brought them into conflict with the provincial and federal governments. The education law and the war time draft resulted in the movement of a large colony to Mexico.

SWEDEN'S BUDGET PROMISES SOME GOOD RESULTS

STOCKHOLM, Dec. 26.—The various departments of the Swedish government are concerned just now with the preparation of the 1923-24 budget, and surpluses are expected in many directions, according to information received by the Minister of Finance.

The custom service reports that the duties on imports for the next fiscal year will total about $28,000,000—Sydney—is considered a crime wave, and the premier of the state has called a conference to deal with the problem.

It will be proposed that the minimum jail sentence be six months. Although all but 184 of the 654 persons arraigned were convicted or pleaded guilty, it is felt that the judiciary has shown undue leniency in dealing with criminal cases.

STEUBENVILLE, Ohio, Dec. 26.—While the members of the Austrian Rolling Stock Commission are making efforts to decide how the equipment of the former Austrian railroads shall be divided among the newly made states, thousands of locomotives and freight cars are rotting on the sidings of Central Europe.

The commission, which is composed of one representative of each of the seven states erected from the old Austrian empire was appointed under the treaty of St. Germain to dispose of the railroads and rolling stock under a plan favorable to the Allies.

The commission has so far been unable to come to a decision, and it has had to dismiss its staff of engineers and experts because of lack of funds. The British government has been advancing money to the commission for its work, but last summer it refused to loan any further amounts until payment was guaranteed. The commission has been unable to do this, although the rolling stock in question is said to be worth $500,000,000.

CHRISTMAS WEATHER BREAKS ALL RECORDS

(By the Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Dec. 26.—All previous records for a warm Christmas day were broken Monday, according to all previous authentic records available, as compared with weather reports for Christmas day this year.

Santa Claus returned to his mythical home in the cold north without experiencing zero weather in any part of the country. The highest reading yesterday was recorded at Ft. Worth, Texas, where the thermometer registered 78 degrees. Kansas City, Missouri, reported a temperature of only ten degrees lower, the warmest Christmas ever recorded here. The same warmth prevails throughout Missouri and Kansas.

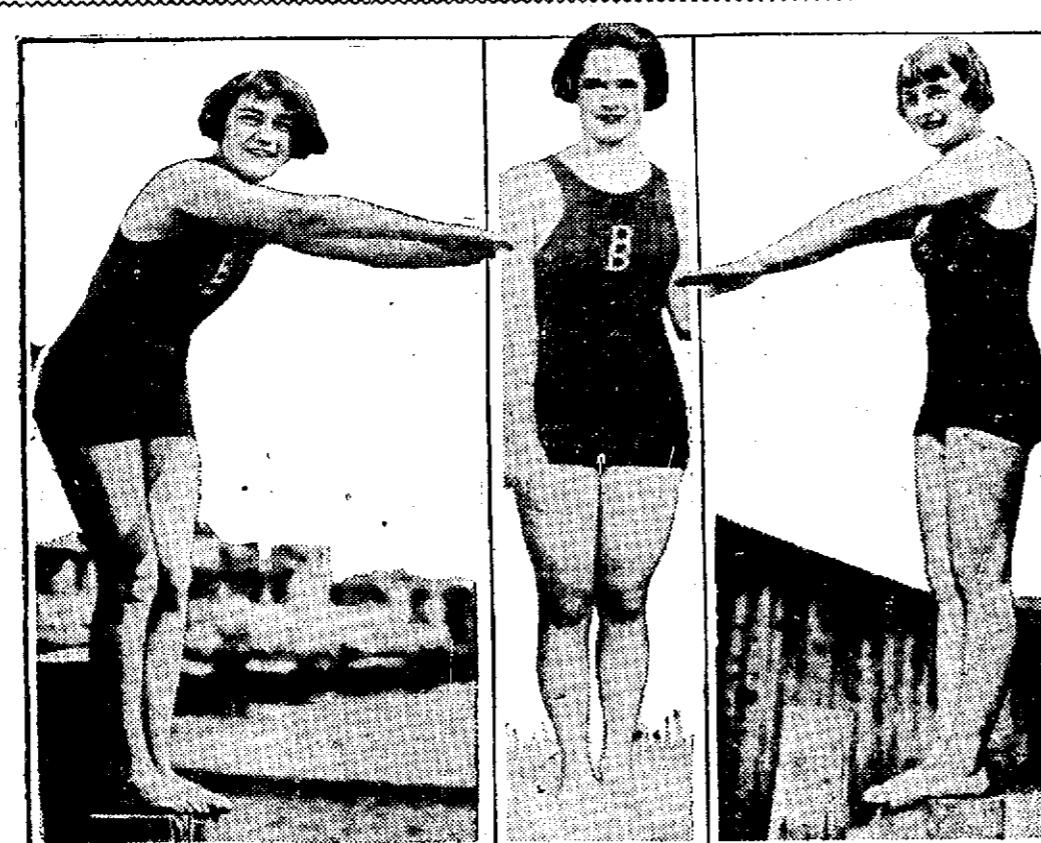

Residents of Chicago had the hottest Christmas in years with the mercury reaching 45 degrees at five o'clock in the afternoon. Exceptionally high temperatures prevailed over the state of Illinois.

In the northwest, visited recently by cold waves that sent the mercury to 36 below, above zero weather maintained. The points in Montana and North Dakota, that temperatures from 20 to 30 degrees below zero during the cold waves, expect a surplus of about $8,800,000. This figure will be out, however, by the deduction for the increase in wages which will continue at a rate not now determined for several months during the fiscal year. The state railways which serve the iron mines by carrying ore except to realize about five percent on the invested capital.

A total of $3,000,000 is expected from the government monopoly in tobacco, while $2,500,000, it is believed, will be realized from the sale by the state of waterpower and electricity. Another $2,000,000 is looked for from the State Domains Department.

THE DYSPEPTIC

By VIVIAN G. HAYES

Baxter street was deteriorating sadly! There was no doubt about it. Miss Lucinda Lee, from the veranda of her stately ancestral home, sent a withering glance across her own fair expanse of green lawns and graceful shade-trees to the unsightly yard and weather-beaten house beyond the iron fence. Half a dozen children laughed and shrieked and gamboled riotously through house, barn and yard. A moth-eaten woman in a blue gingham apron sat upon the rickety doorstop peeling potatoes and, incidentally, refereeing a lively game of "Steps."

Miss Lucinda thrust forward her head. Her aristocratic nostrils dilated. She sniffed daintily, then backed precipitately toward her front door. Boiled dinner again!

Miss Lucinda hastily repacked to the dining room and, selecting a bottle from the heterogeneous assortment of flasks and boxes surrounding her plate, extracted a small pill and swallowed it in a tiny glass of carefully sterilized water. She noticed with great satisfaction that her heart action seemed much stronger directly after taking it.

Miss Lucinda now took from beside her plate a small book which contained a list of articles of food which the doctor had forbidden her to eat. The list included practically everything that was particularly worthy of human consumption, so it was a very simple matter indeed to find the meager supply which was not banned. And so, at the back of the book, Miss Lucinda had jotted down a little two-inch paragraph, headed simply, "Things I Can Eat."

Today she decided on boiled rice, and started rather slowly and reluctantly to cook it. She gazed at the little white particles abstractedly and sighed as she placed the kettle upon the stove. A curious, empty, gnawing sensation had replaced her "heart spell."

She wandered aimlessly back to the kitchen. Her eyes roved over the pantry shelves. Suddenly her face lighted up. She pulled down her mother's old "Cook Book," and, sitting in the big rocking-chair, she turned the yellowed pages eagerly, her eyes dim with old memories.

Many of the recipes were in her mother's cramped, old-fashioned writing. "Escalloped oysters!" Miss Lucinda drew in her breath, slowly, longingly. What perfectly wonderful escalloped oysters mother used to make!

In quick succession she read the headings of another page: "Indian Pudding," "Pumpkin Pie," "Gingerbread," and—what was that? "Boiled Dinner!" She remembered now, her mother had been partial to boiled dinners. In fancy she could see the big platter in which the steaming vegetables had been borne triumphantly to the table.

Miss Lucinda closed the book slowly. Her colorless dinner simmered in a spineless fashion upon the stove, odorless, tasteless, highly nutritious. She eyed it frowningly, then turned and went out upon the veranda, closing the front door firmly behind her. The lock clicked sharply and, with a little exclamation of dismay, she realized that she had locked herself out. The back door was also locked, as were all the windows downstairs. She sat down to ponder her plight.

Big drops of rain began to fall thick and fast, promising to drench Miss Lucinda's thin gown. She started to her feet helplessly just as a hearty, sympathetic voice sounded from the gate, and the moth-eaten woman next door hustled up the walk.

"Come right straight home with me, dearie," she chirped, holding her umbrella over Miss Lucinda's head and grasping her arm. "I'm always getting locked out myself, thanks to those heedless young ones of mine"—she laughed comfortingly—"and I know just how it feels. Dinner's all ready, and we'd love to have you stay. When the shower lets up, Sammy can borrow a ladder and climb in one of your windows."

While she talked, she had propelled Miss Lucinda vigorously down the walk and in at the dilapidated gate next door. In the dining room the boiled dinner was steaming irresistibly upon its huge platter, and Miss Lucinda viewed it through a sudden mist of tears, her mind busy with old memories.

Her capsules and pellets and pills, with their bewildering directions for "before and after meals," were unavailable, and she didn't care. Her rice stood burning upon the stove, and she was glad of it. Every article of food on the table before her was contained among those she shouldn't eat, but it worried her not a whit.

She beamed affably upon her hostess and her noisy brood, and graciously permitted them to heap her plate with a goodly portion of the intensely vulgar, highly indigestible, but incomparably delectable boiled dinner.

Greenwich Follies beats Grid Champ in Matrimony

Paul Leatherman and his bride, Natalie Brown.

(By Central Press)

CHICAGO, Dec. 22.—Paul Leatherman is a football star of some not out at the University of Chicago. And as such he is accustomed to bucking the well-known grid-iron "stonewalls" with considerable success.

Perhaps it was his gridiron success that encouraged him in his latest "bucking" enterprise—bucking the stone wall of precedent. Paul Leatherman is positive that he can do it.

He proved his determination here when he led Natalie Brown, a fair-toe dancer with the Greenwich Village Follies, to the altar and made her Mrs. Paul Leatherman—at least off the stage.

Now it is a well-known fact that Follies girls have a peculiar difficulty. In fact they have established a precedent. They may wed, but they just don't stay that way.

Young News Merchants Advocators of Thrift

A boy learns while he earns and, hence, he grows to be thrifty. That is what Mrs. L. E. Riddle, circulation manager of The Ada News, says in her annual review of the circulation department's dealings with the carrier boys who bring each daily edition of the News to the front door of hundreds of subscribers in the city.

Including substitutes there are thirteen boys connected with the paper distributing system employed by the News in getting the paper to customers. Among this number are several fellows who are very thrifty and others gradually grow into the habit of saving the money they earn after being on the job a few months. Mrs. Riddle points out.

She has made a personal survey of the manner in which each of the boys spend his money. This survey has disclosed, she said, that only a very small percentage of the money earned is spent "foolishly," and that the greater part of it is used for worthy purposes.

One of the boys is paying for a saxophone at this time; another is making payments on a policy in the Home Building and Loan association, nearly all of the boys

Christmas Observed in Various Styles in Old Nations Men Say

Christmas, the ancient date of worship and sacred to the memory of the birth of Christ, is fundamentally the same in all Christian nations over the face of the earth. Interviews with foreign-born citizens of Pontotoc county reverses the fact that outside few differences in observances of Christmas, the sacred holiday is about the same.

Interviews with foreign-born citizens of the county indicates that the holidays are on practically the same date throughout the Christian world.

P. Raineland, a farmer living near Union Hill in this county, recalls the observance of Christmas holidays at his old home in Aoste, Italy, before coming to this country thirty years ago.

Raineland, who still wears a bit of the Italian brogue in his congestions, could scarcely tell the difference in the Christmas of his old sunny Italy and the modern America. He stated, however, that the holidays bore more religious thought with them and that the observance was more of a sacred period with the distributing of toys and good things to eat as a secondary matter to be followed out during the New Year holiday two days later.

In describing the old ceremonies on Christmas eve, Raineland told of the services of the church. He explained that mass was held at 11 o'clock, which lasted for one or two hours. He explained that the church, itself was decorated fitting to the holidays with Noel, the sheepherder, serving in the stead of our Santa. The statue of Virgin Mary was placed over the alter of the church, he explained.

John Muller, another of Pontotoc county's foreign born, sees little dif-

SPORT SCHEDULE CHANGED AGAIN

Teachers College Awards Membership in State Conference Again.

A change in the basketball schedule of East Central college has been made, according to announcement today by Coach M. Z. Thompson, athletic coach. Two games scheduled to be played in Ada with Weatherford on February 16 and 17 have been changed to Weatherford; games with Alva Teachers scheduled for January 16 and 17 changed to Jan. 22 and 23.

Coach Thompson said the changes were necessary for two reasons—one because of too many home games, and the other to make his longest trip more convenient.

He said the changes were decided upon at a recent conference held in Oklahoma City. He attended the conference meeting and was present when Tulsa University was expelled from the collegiate organization.

Prospects are good for bringing the state track and field meet to Ada, he said. Ada has made a bid of $200 to land the meet and East Central college is exercising all influence possible to land the event. In case it is brought to Ada the city will be host to college athletes from Phillips University of Enid, Oklahoma City College, Central Teachers of Edmond, Weatherford Teachers, Alva Teachers, Tahlequah Teachers, Durant Teachers, Oklahoma A. & M. College, and all other members of the intercollegiate conference of Oklahoma.

But precedent doesn't worry Leatherman. "It's the bunk," says he. And, nestling on his arm, Natalie, she of the twinkling toes, agrees with her husky husband.

Leatherman first saw Miss Brown while witnessing a performance of the Greenwich Follies in New York some six months back.

The usual meeting took place.

A courtship followed. Swift and fervent it was. Then the show came to Chicago for a run. Leatherman welcomed Old Man Opportunity's every visit.

And the wedding followed.

The quadrangle meet, held in Ada last year, will be held at Oklahoma Baptist University at Shawnee this year, it was decided. East Central, Southwestern, O. B. U. and Oklahoma City College are members.

Dates for important track and field meets of the state are announced as follows: State meet at Stillwater at Oklahoma A. & M. will be held April 27 and 28; state meet to be held at University of Oklahoma at Norman May 4 and 5; intercollegiate state meet at Ada May 11 and 12; East Central district meet April 20 and 21; quadrangle meet at Shawnee April 27 and 28.

Coach Thompson said that East Central was given the three year membership to the eligibility committee. He also stated that Oklahoma A. & M. college has consented to give Ada four baseball games, two to be played at Ada and two at Stillwater.

The district basketball tournament for high school will be held here March 3 and 4.

The coach said that the baseball schedule will include most of the colleges of the state, as all are planning to sponsor teams this year.

Oil News

Happenings in the oil fields of Pontotoc and other counties in this section of the state.

That the well of the American Indian Oil & Gas company, in section 10-32-2e, near Stratford, will make over 30,000,000 cubic feet of gas is the belief of W. L. Allen, the company's production superintendent. The sand was touched at 920 feet and was entered with a rat-tail seventeen feet. The well is to be drilled in next Tuesday. Galloway & Dobie, drilling in 17-22-2e, report having found a sand at 740 feet that probably will make forty to fifty barrels. The hole is caving and is difficult to clean out for a test.

SEARCH STARTED FOR SIX XMAS PAYROLL BANDITS

PITTSBURG, Pa., Dec. 23.—The Southwestern section of the Pennsylvania was being combed by county detectives and police tonight for the six bandits, who, armed with shot guns, killed Ross Dennis, a Pittsburg Coal company paymaster and escaped with $20,000. The holdup occurred on a lonely road, ten miles from the city.

Late today the automobile, in which the bandits escaped, was found a few miles from the scene of the robbery.
